

Notice of the RF's Electronic Monitoring of Telephone, Email & Internet Access & Usage

The RF provides computer and telephone equipment and related facilities for the purpose of conducting RF business. The RF reserves the right to monitor and review, by any lawful means at any and all times, any telephone conversations or transmissions, electronic communications or transmissions, or internet access or usage by an employee by any electronic device or system, including but without limitation the use of a computer, telephone, wire, radio, or electromagnetic, photoelectronic or photo-optical systems, and information stored in a computer or exchanged over RF-provided systems, including without limitation e-mail, voice mail, and/or stored e-mail or voice mail messages, at the RF's discretion without prior notice. Use of RF-provided systems shall be considered consent to monitoring.