Reason for Policy
The Research Foundation (RF) for the State University of New York establishes this policy to ensure positions are classified in a fair, equitable and consistent manner.

Statement of Policy
The RF prohibits compensation discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, creed, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, military status or disability. The RF also prohibits sex based wage discrimination between employees in the same establishment who perform jobs that require substantially equal skill, effort and responsibility under similar working conditions.

The RF position classification procedures must be adhered to when classifying and determining salary level for new positions or when reclassifying existing positions. Positions must be classified and the compensation level or range determined prior to recruitment. The compensation must be within the corresponding salary range and reviewed for internal and external equity.

Within the RF position classification system, all positions are categorized as exempt or nonexempt and fall within a pay range. Within the RF classification and compensation system each position has a corresponding position standard that describes characteristics, function and scope, typical duties of the position. Each position standard has a corresponding salary grade with a minimum and maximum salary.

A position may be reclassified at a supervisor’s or employee’s request when the duties of an existing position changes significantly. A campus location determines when a new position is needed or if an existing position needs to be reclassified.
